Investor's Business Daily tapped banking analysts to tell the story of Western Alliance Bancorp and the company's successful focus on not only traditional business banking, but also on specific niche businesses that set Western Alliance apart.

The article takes note of another differentiator for Western Alliance – its people: “The company hires experts in the various industry segments it pursues so it can be more helpful to its clients.”

Even at a moment when bank stocks have moved up nearly across the board, analysts point to WAL's distinctive business model and high levels of performance.
