DEDICATED PEOPLE.
People who create value-added relationships are what Western Alliance is all about. Extraordinary service and hands-on leadership make us different.

TAILORED PRODUCTS.
A sophisticated array of deposit and lending products helps our customers meet their business goals. Flexible and smart, our innovative, custom-tailored solutions are designed to fit.

ROBUST CAPABILITIES.
Backed by deep expertise across geographical and industry segments, Western Alliance has the reach and resources our business clients need to grow.
In 2017, our exceptional company created value for our clients, shareholders, employees, and the communities we serve. Western Alliance continued to attract new clients and expand existing relationships. Our client-centric approach and customer satisfaction drove all our business segments to gain market share during the year. Total assets for the company grew by 18% to end 2017 at $20.3 billion. Total loans grew by $1.89 billion which was a 14% increase over 2016, to $15.1 billion, as WAL continues to be a trusted partner and funding source for businesses. Total deposits increased by $2.42 billion, 17%, to end the year at $17.0 billion.

Net income of $325 million and earnings per share of $3.10 for 2017 compared favorably to $260 million and $2.50, respectively. Return on average assets and return on tangible common equity of 1.72% and 18.32% placed Western Alliance among industry leaders. Augmenting strong balance sheet and earnings growth were an increase in our regulatory capital of $350 million to $2.5 billion and another stellar year of asset quality numbers including net loan losses of 0.01% and total non-performing assets at December 31, 2017, of 0.36% of total assets.

Our stock price is a measure of the growth and success of our business and a result of the investment in our people, products and technology over the long term in both good and not-so-good times. Recognizing our strong overall performance, the market rewarded our shareholders with a 16.3% return for the year and a five-year return of 437%, which was more than double that of our peer index and the S&P 500. Forbes magazine ranked WAL #2 on its 2018 “Best Banks in America” list.

We value being excellent corporate citizens, not just in how we treat our employees and clients, but in how we positively impact the communities we live in. We now provide credit to help over 7,500 businesses grow. This report features two clients from our innovation banking group that are making a meaningful contribution to society. One has a mission to revolutionize children’s meals, starting in schools. The other to make life with diabetes easier and safer. Another featured example comes from our municipal finance group where we provided a customized loan solution to aid in easing traffic congestion in the busy Silicon Valley. During the year, our dedicated employees provided over 10,000 hours of community service. We provided $84 million of direct community investments and grants. Our various real estate lending groups originated $230 million in community development loans, and our affordable housing lending unit increased its committed capital to over $600 million. These loans are used to build/remodel housing units for over 100,000 residents across 42 states.

Looking to 2018, our goal is to continue to deliver exceptional results for our shareholders, clients, and employees, while at the same time operating with discipline and managing risk appropriately. We will continue to selectively add new bankers, offices, and relevant products to meet our customers’ needs. We will invest in new technology to help our clients grow and operate more efficiently as well as protect their data.

We will continue to grow our balance sheet, which supports the credit and liquidity needs of our clients. We reinvest all of our earnings back into our business to maintain a strong capital position needed to augment our growth.

Our people, including our Board of Directors, are our most important asset. We are thankful for their passion, hard work, entrepreneurial spirit, and dedication to Western Alliance.

Robert G. Sarver
Executive Chairman of the Board
Western Alliance Bank

Kenneth A. Vecchione
Chief Executive Officer
Western Alliance Bank
A Special Thank You

Also in 2017, we took important steps to make sure Western Alliance has a robust set of talented leaders to guide the company’s continued growth and strong performance for years to come. Our roles are shifting in positive ways as Ken Vecchione, who returned to the company as President in July, steps into the CEO position this spring. I will continue to provide strategic leadership as Executive Chairman of the Board. Dale Gibbons, our company’s longstanding Chief Financial Officer, remains in this key role and adds the title Vice Chairman. Jim Haught, who joined Western Alliance in April as Chief Operating Officer and oversees operations and technology, now also becomes President.

This new leadership structure adds more depth and resources to our executive team and underscores the strategies that have always differentiated Western Alliance.

Our board continually focuses on succession planning, not just at the CEO level, but throughout our entire senior management team. This plan has been well thought out and in process for over a year. The timing is right. Our company is in a very strong position.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank you, customers, shareholders and my co-workers, for your loyalty and support during my 15 years as CEO. I am proud of what Western Alliance has accomplished, but even more excited for its future.

Robert G. Sarver
Executive Chairman of the Board
Western Alliance Bank

“"Our stock price is a measure of the growth and success of our business and a result of the investment in our people, products and technology over the long term.”"
FINANCIAL HIGHLIGHTS.

Charting Another Year of Strong Performance

“Our business customers are looking to grow. And Western Alliance is right there with them with increased capital and increased capacity.”

ROBERT SARVER
Let’s begin by saying 2017 was another really good year for the bank. And one of the things I felt most proud about was our ability to keep growing and keep providing our customers with the resources they need to continue to grow their businesses.

KENNETH VECCHIONE
We take care of our people first, our people take care of our customers. Those two things together help deliver superior performance. Lastly, we give back to the communities where we live and work.

DALE GIBBONS
I think it starts with ownership of the client experience by the people who work for this company. What makes us stand out is our entrepreneurial spirit. We’re almost unique in our ability to grow without creating siloes.

JIM HAUGHT
It’s also the lifecycle approach we take with our customers. From the time they are prospects, through the lending process, to onboarding and then the care we put into ongoing customer relationships. And, right from the start, we are stewards of our customers’ information. So a priority for us is investing in information security.

ROBERT SARVER
You know we’ve always felt reinvesting our money into our company is the best thing for us to do. In turn we can reinvest that money into our customers and grow with our customers.

KENNETH VECCHIONE
I agree with you. Our capital growth supports our customer growth. And being there for our customers when they need credit supports our growth. That’s been our model since we started the company. I also think we come into this year with a lot of wind at our back – the economy is growing and the recent tax reform legislation should help the economy to expand even further.

DALE GIBBONS
It’s going to add a lot of liquidity to the economy, both in terms of lower tax rates and what’s been passed on through. We’ve passed part of this on to our team, giving raises, increasing our 401(k) and returning the benefits.

ROBERT SARVER
When it comes to attracting and retaining the best people, I think people also want to know, “can I take care of my customers?” We offer them the best of both worlds, the best of what a smaller bank can offer in terms of level of service, family environment, responsiveness, and the best of what a larger bank can offer. This means resources, capital, larger loan limits and a larger array of products, so bankers can make their customers happy.

JIM HAUGHT
When we’re out recruiting people, one of the things that gets them very excited about working here is that entrepreneurial concept. Every day you’re coming in and there are new things being crafted, new ideas being tried out, we’re always pushing that innovation sphere every single day. And for banking that’s pretty unusual.

DALE GIBBONS
Making a difference in our communities is a real value for employees. One area where we’ve had significant impact is affordable housing. Our bank has helped finance developments in over 40 states, and some hundred thousand people are now living in homes that we helped facilitate.

KENNETH VECCHIONE
Ultimately, people also want to work with an organization that values transparency, credibility, and honesty. Our leadership team is always honest with each other, we’re transparent in what we do and that helps us build a better company.

The way we structure our credits is a point of pride in how we do business. It’s part of why our customers see us as dependable and mutually supportive.”

Kenneth Vecchione
Here’s some (good) food for thought: Starting from scratch in 2006, Revolution Foods has grown to now serve two million healthy meals per week in 1,000+ schools nationwide, with revenues exceeding $150 million in 2017.

“We began with a very strong vision to transform access to healthy, delicious, kid-inspired, chef-crafted meals,” says Chairman and CEO Kristin Groos Richmond, one of the Oakland-based company’s two “founding moms,” along with Chief Impact Officer Kirsten Saenz Tobey. Their food philosophy is that nurturing bright minds starts with fueling active bodies.

Now the proof is in the pudding. New research from Nutrition Policy Institute and UC Berkeley concludes students at California public schools with a healthy lunch vendor score higher on achievement tests.

Helping to power this growing, venture capital-backed enterprise – now also expanding in grocery aisles – is Western Alliance’s Bridge Bank. Says Revolution Foods CFO Kendall Baker: “The bank is an active participant in our growth. They helped make sure we had funding that worked on our way to expanding our revenues more than 20 percent this year.”

Mike Lederman
SVP, Western Region Director, Technology Banking
We have consistently found this is the most innovative, technically aware lender in their space. This bank is so creative and responsive, they are an important part of our success and impact.

I think Western Alliance is one of the reasons we’ve succeeded and continue to succeed.”

Bill Rogers
CEO, Homeowners Financial Group
Sometimes it’s who you know – and what they know. At least according to Bill Rogers, CEO of award-winning mortgage company Homeowners Financial Group (HFG).

In 2011, when HFG first became a client of Western Alliance’s Mortgage Warehouse Lending, the Scottsdale-based company already had a handful of successful offices in Arizona and California. Today HFG, which funded an impressive $1.7 billion in mortgage loans in 2016, is licensed in 24 states and operates more than 40 brick-and-mortar locations.

Throughout this period of strategic expansion, Rogers has relied on his bankers as a resource for valuable counsel. “I really feel like there has been a lot of mentoring from Western Alliance as I’ve grown my business. They have worked with other growing mortgage companies and they see things across the business landscape that deepen our understanding.”

He adds, “It’s more than just a banking relationship, I trust their opinions about the business environment. As we’re growing, they help us make sure our growth is sustainable.”

Our team brings significant depth of experience in the mortgage industry to each of our clients, and this is a competitive advantage.”

Steve Curley
EVP, Mortgage Warehouse Lending
For millions of Silicon Valley drivers, spending a few dollars to shave seven minutes off their commutes is an appealing bargain. That’s all part of the plan for Santa Clara Valley Transportation Authority (VTA), a public agency charged with easing traffic congestion in this booming economic region.

Western Alliance Public and Nonprofit Finance stepped in to provide streamlined financing to fund Phase 2 of a system offering solo drivers congestion pricing to use HOV lanes on the busy SR-237. This is a unique example of toll financing, where repayment relies exclusively on toll revenues with no taxpayer funds.

“The fact that we could custom-tailor the financing really helped us,” said Raj Srinath, CFO, VTA. “Being able to work with one responsive bank, a commercial bank vs. an investment bank, was more flexible, more convenient and ultimately more cost-effective.”

By merging solutions-focused banking with the goals of a forward-thinking public agency, Western Alliance was able to greenlight this high-impact, high-tech project.

“We’re committed to developing financing solutions specifically tailored to meet our customers’ objectives.”

Monika Suarez
SVP, Municipal Finance Director
Western Alliance took time to learn the issues, they visited and toured, and we were impressed with their hands-on approach.”

Raj Srinath
CFO, Santa Clara Valley Transportation Authority
Western Alliance Bank excels for business in great part because we constantly add to the true expertise our clients count on. We combine this sound experience with a customer-focused approach and entrepreneurial thinking to help clients in all types of industries, professions and business accomplish more.

It’s well beyond accounts and credit lines – clients seek out Western Alliance for dedicated, knowledgeable bankers who understand the particular dynamics of their business sector and marketplace, as well as the macro forces shaping the overall economy. At our bank, industry acumen that adds value is a key point of difference.

A Discussion With Three Industry Experts

HEALTHCARE
Tom Woolway
SVP, Regional Manager
Torrey Pines Bank

Q: How does the bank help healthcare companies take advantage of their opportunities?
A: One example is our expanding program involving the purchase of hospital accounts receivable—called HARP. Hospitals and patients around the country benefit from this program on a number of levels. Patients are provided with long-term, interest-free loans to repay their hospital obligations. Hospitals are relieved of the task of managing patient payments and receive immediate liquidity. No other bank does exactly what we do.

LEGAL
Sarah Guindy
EVP, Corporate Banking Manager
Bank of Nevada

Q: What makes the bank a particularly strong resource for law firms?
A: We have a dedicated, experienced juris team and we work very hard to meet the unique financial needs of the legal community. We take time to understand how each law firm sees success and we work to help them reach their goals. We customize our services and products to handle their individual cash flow requirements. Each firm is different; it’s just not cookie-cutter. Our bank understands this.

COMMERCIAL REAL ESTATE
John Eldean
SVP, Real Estate Loan Officer
Alliance Bank of Arizona

Q: In what ways does the bank add value to commercial real estate clients?
A: Clients tell me they value our bank’s track record of doing exactly what we say we’ll do. They also need certainty of execution—an essential in commercial real estate—and we deliver on this. Our clients say we understand what they do and why they do it, and that we add value to the process because of our deep industry knowledge.
As a go-to business bank for clients around the country, Western Alliance has honed a variety of industry-specific deposit and financing capabilities. The rationale is simple: Companies benefit dramatically from working with highly experienced bankers who understand their industries and sectors from the inside out.

Our specialized banking groups provide products and services for a select set of business segments including technology, life sciences, venture capitalists and private equity, renewable resources, municipalities and nonprofits, hotel developers, mortgage companies, timeshare developers and homeowner associations. Matched with our proven commitment to outstanding service, these in-depth, specialized offerings help customers achieve their goals.

At Berkley International, “Think Global, Act Local” applies to more than the company’s burgeoning manufacturing business. It also applies to its bank – Western Alliance’s Torrey Pines Bank, around the corner from CEO Jeff Berkley’s home in Beverly Hills.

Based in Southern California near the country’s two busiest ports, Berkley International makes environmentally friendly, molded fiber packaging that protects everything from wine to electronics. This dynamic business ranked #1 manufacturer in America on the Inc. 5000 list in 2016, the same year it was named fastest-growing L.A. company by the Los Angeles Business Journal. Berkley International also has operations in Napa Valley, Bentonville, and Suzhou near Shanghai.

Early on, the bank stepped up with a line of credit and funded the company’s first piece of equipment. Now the relationship centers on servicing complex business and personal accounts. Says Berkley: “This bank understands manufacturers. They also understand things change quickly in a manufacturing environment. And they’re highly supportive in helping us grow.”

What’s unique is we’re a commercial bank with significant industry knowledge, but the above-and-beyond customer service we strive to deliver is more like the experience of private banking.”

On a Mission With Bigfoot Biomedical

For almost everyone at Bigfoot Biomedical, diabetes is personal. “Our solution is something my family desperately needs,” says CEO Jeffrey Brewer about the company’s all-out efforts to bring to market a disruptive, new technology to make life with diabetes easier and safer.

Western Alliance’s Bridge Bank saw this purpose as an intangible asset for this emerging medical device company. “This bank is a true partner. We had a number of proposals, but Bridge Bank went the extra mile to give us comfort that this would be a relationship vs. a transaction, and that is exactly how it’s been,” adds Brewer.

Today, dosing insulin is complicated and cumbersome, requiring multiple prescriptions and devices, and can be prone to error. Now Bigfoot is making big strides, heading toward pivotal trials for its breakthrough solutions — each part of an overarching ecosystem designed to deliver insulin in a safer, more user-friendly way for a broader range of people living with insulin-requiring diabetes.

We know our clients and this market, and what’s motivating this management team to innovate and persevere just adds to Bigfoot’s immense opportunity.”

Rob Lake
SVP, Head of Life Sciences
COMMUNITY IMPACT.

Meaningful Involvement

Lifting up our communities is important to the people of Western Alliance. We live this value in many ways, starting with financial support for affordable housing projects, community developments and grants to many nonprofit organizations. In addition, we take leadership and supporting roles in community organizations providing thousands of hours of volunteer time.

IN 2017

$231 Million
in community development loans

10,830
employee community service hours

$84 Million
in new community investments and donations
“Heartbreak Hotel” no more. A historic hotel in downtown Spokane, WA – where Elvis actually stayed – is finding new purpose as a redeveloped 13-story residential property, with more than 80 percent of apartments set aside for affordable housing. Opening in 2018, the revitalized building relied on bond funding from Western Alliance.

Since 2012, Western Alliance has invested more than $600 million in committed capital and debt to help build, renovate and restore 200+ low-income, multi-family housing properties across the country. In all, this equates to more than 25,000 apartment units that provide housing for over 100,000 residents in 42 states.

Financial support for affordable housing is one facet of the bank’s deeply rooted commitment to enhancing quality of life and creating stronger, more resilient communities.

There are more than 11 million U.S. households spending at least half their incomes on what is often sub-standard housing. Every investment we make to improve affordable housing and make it more available chips away at this significant social issue.”

Jennifer Holyoak
SVP, Commercial Real Estate Finance
Western Alliance Bank
At Bank of Nevada, playing an active role in improving local K-12 education is nearly as central to the bank’s mission as taking deposits and making loans.

“As a bank that serves the business community, we believe the education system is the one thing that can hold our clients back from reaching their full potential,” says John Guedry, CEO, Bank of Nevada.

That’s why Bank of Nevada has taken a leadership role in coalescing Las Vegas’ business community in a singularly effective program called (BE) Engaged – Business + Education Engaged. Now heading into its third year of working to improve Clark County’s challenged public school district, the fifth largest in the nation that serves 75 percent of all students in Nevada, (BE) Engaged counts a growing list of successes.

Already, 135 C-level executives and business owners have committed to hands-on mentoring to the school district, and the renowned STEM Academy has provided curriculum for all of the district’s middle schools. And that’s just the beginning. With (BE) Engaged, look for improved performance – and a better report card – for this vitally important school district.

Helping to graduate more students who will be able to meet the current and future job requirements of our growing economy is essential.”
Bank of Nevada gets an A+ for being engaged in K-12 education efforts here in Clark County. John and his team have passion, leadership and depth of knowledge on the issues. We’re glad they’re here.”

The customer experience is always central to the value Western Alliance delivers for clients. Now, investments in fast-moving digitalization are powering even more synergies, cost-savings and convenience for our business clients – all core to a great banking relationship.

“Our focus is on continual technology advancements designed to simplify life for our customers,” says John Peckham, EVP and Chief Information Officer, Western Alliance Bank.

From fast and flexible mobile banking solutions and automated tools to fight fraud to systems that optimize payments and receivables, the bank’s enhanced digital resources help clients succeed.

No matter which banking channels clients choose, Western Alliance differentiates the experience with comprehensive, hands-on training and advisory support.

Western Alliance works hard to understand our customers’ businesses. This is a strength that helps us solve client problems and tailor smart, effective solutions, so they can increase their level of efficiency.”

High-tech Advantage for Lowcountry HOA Leader

It turns out that technology is essential, even in a natural paradise like Hilton Head in South Carolina’s famed Lowcountry. For IMC Resort Services, one key to ensuring the experience is nearly as perfect as the scenery for more than 10,000 condo owners is the seamless interface with Alliance Association Bank.

“We wouldn’t be where we are without our bank,” says Ron Fenstermaker, CEO, IMC Resort Services. “They bring us advanced systems that give us internal efficiencies, so we can focus on taking care of our properties and our customers.”

IMC chose the bank because of its tech-forward solutions for community management companies. The bank’s ConnectLive platform integrates with the industry-specific Village Management Software to automate the business’ complex administrative infrastructure that handles billing, accounting and banking for each of its client communities.

Grounded in operational efficiency, IMC has been able to grow by emphasizing customer service, adding nearly 40 new communities for a total of 80+, since beginning its relationship with Western Alliance’s Alliance Association Bank in 2010.

“IMC’s commitment to excellence – backed by the strong productivity supported by our technology – has helped transform this market-leading company.”
